

What you can do: World AIDS Day 2006

On December 1, 2006, World AIDS Day, Episcopal Relief and Development commemorates the 25th anniversary of the first reported case of AIDS. Our hearts go out to the people living with HIV worldwide, those who have died from AIDS and the millions of children left orphaned and without support.

HIV/AIDS is the worst epidemic in human history:

- 40 million people are infected worldwide.
- 14,000 people are newly infected every day.
- 12 million children in sub-Saharan Africa have lost one or both parents to AIDS.

But you can help today.

Working with Anglican and ecumenical partners, our comprehensive programs are reaching out to some of the most devastated areas in Africa and Latin America, with:

- prevention education,
- care for affected people and
- support for extended families and children left behind.

In the developing world, the AIDS pandemic is overwhelming the physical, social and economic health of entire communities and regions. Not only do people suffer and die from this disease, but for those living with the disease, it robs them of their dignity, their families, their social networks and their livelihoods.

Please support families and children affected by HIV/AIDS and give them the care, support and education they need for the future.
